Dorm Cooking

3 Simple Steps

1. Provide your members with a short list of ingredients to get before the next meeting.
2. Walk through how to make your dish step by step over zoom, similar to a cooking show!
3. After, allow everyone to enjoy their dish as you finish off the meeting.

Picking out a recipe!

- Try connecting the dish to your organization! Think of creative names to tie the recipe to your meeting goals.

Start your meeting with this activity to promote members having their cameras on!

Scavanger Hunt

Make members of your organization run around their dorm looking for objects to display to you, the last few to do so each round are out.

- Come up with a list of items to find before the meeting.
- Make each round progressively harder.
- Consider putting up a prize to encourage impassioned participation!

1-Spy: In order to participate all players must have their cameras on! An individual will spot something visible to everyone on the call, players may take turns guessing what it is.

Need help encouraging members to keep their cameras on? Start your meeting with I-Spy!

Virtual Tours!

Due to covid many museums and National parks have resorted to virtual tours. Your org may be able to take advantage of this and do a screen share virtual tour together!

Quick ZOOM Tips!

01 Avoid “yes or no” questions, this will limit how members interact and respond virtually.

02 Utilize presentations and visuals. Share these with members after the meeting.

03 Don't forget to incorporate Zoom polls into your meeting.

04 For collaborative thinking enable the white board feature!

05 Assign a clear task when utilizing breakout rooms to prevent awkward silences and confusion.

06 Make meeting notes available to individuals unable to attend the meeting synchronously!
